

Immigration Fraud Red Flags

A quick verification checklist before you trust a representative, job offer, admission or payment request.

Where Dreams Take Flight

Stop and verify if you hear

- "Your visa is guaranteed."
- "Pay us and we will get you a Canadian job."
- "Do not contact the employer or school directly."
- "We have someone inside the embassy."
- "Change these dates/duties/funds so the file works."
- "Pay today or the secret program closes tonight."

Verify the representative

- For paid Canadian immigration advice, check the individual's authorization with the appropriate regulator.
- Do not rely on a screenshot of a licence. Search the official public register yourself.

Verify the opportunity

- Search the employer or school independently.
- Use contact information from the organization's official website.
- Ask whether the job/admission actually exists and whether the named recruiter is genuine.

Verify the payment

- Know the legal business name.
- Know exactly what the payment is for.
- Read refund/cancellation terms.
- Use traceable payment methods and keep receipts.

Protect your documents

- Do not give account passwords to unverified people.
- Do not send passports or bank statements through casual channels unless a secure process is clearly established.
- Never approve false information submitted in your name.

Remember

Trust is not the absence of questions. Trust is what remains after the claims, credentials and process have been verified.

General information only. Rules can change. Always verify official sources and use an authorized representative where a regulated service requires one.
